

I do not agree with the above petition. Just because someone has 20 years experience in Amateur Radio doesn't mean they can qualify for the next level of license. If they can't upgrade after 20 years with study, they probably aren't qualified to be at the next level anyway. If I drive a car for over 20 years that wouldn't qualify me to operate a truck with a commercial license. I would have to study and pass a test to prove I could operate a truck. This is my opinion as a ham operator for many years. Thank you, Gary Steinbeck
